

Ideas for Involving the Whole School in Your Campaign

English Class

Team up with an English teacher at your school and use a safe driving video as a writing prompt.

Health Class

Purchase a classroom set of safe driving videos to be used in class as a prevention measure.

Statistics Class

Talk with a statistics teacher about having the class measure the impact of your campaign with pre and post tests.

Photography Class

Meet with the photography teacher and have the class create safe driving posters to be displayed around the school.

Broadcasting Class

Have the class create a story about your campaign and its message to be shared with the whole school! Or make this a school wide contest with the broadcasting teacher giving extra points to those who participate.

Art Class

Pick a page from the OHSP free coloring books and see how each student can paint or color them in a unique way. Talk to the teacher about hanging them in the hallway for the whole school to see.

These are just a few ideas. What can your team come up with? Involving the whole school in your campaign is a great way to gain support, spread the word, and get your message to stick with your peers!
